Opening Session with Guest Speaker Nick van Bloss
Thursday, October 14, 7:00 pm–9:00 pm
Nick is the only acclaimed concert pianist in the world who suffers from severe, non-swearing Tourette Syndrome, a condition that causes him some 70,000 bodily tics per day. However, once he touches a piano, his tics dissipate. Not only does this give Nick respite from an exhausting condition, it seems that the neuro and muscular activity that would normally cause uncontrollable tics allows Nick to harness this energy to the piano and music. Oliver Sacks who wrote a chapter of his book Musicophilia about Nick, believed that Tourette’s enhances his musical ability. Nick will share his story of triumph over adversity, the obstacles that living with Tourette’s has presented personally and professionally, and how music has been the antidote to his condition.

Simultaneously, she has long been active in community organizing and movements for social and environmental justice and has taught on issues surrounding systematic oppression, structural supremacy, and liberation theory.

Safe Spaces, Resilience, and Other Empty Promises: Articulating the Need for a Paradigm Shift in Trauma-Informed Music Therapy Practice
Saturday, October 16, 6:00 pm–7:15 pm
Presenter(s): Dr. Elly Scrine
This paper interrogates the failure of trauma-informed practice, as it currently stands, to realistically engage with the promise of safety and the pervasiveness of systemic violence. Challenge your tendency to frame trauma as an individual experience and expect resilience through adversity; outline alternative paths forward.

The Importance of Cultural Competency When Addressing Trauma; An Intentional Exploration of Cultural Humility
Sunday, October 17, 4:30 pm–5:45 pm
Presenter(s): Natalia Alvarez-Figueroa, MMT, MT-BC
Minorities and non-primary English speakers are to have a voice in leading the conversation pertaining to important components of how to effectively treat trauma. The focus for this presentation lies on the importance of culture within the field of trauma. Cultural competency and cultural humility are to come hand in hand for transformative and sustainable therapy to take place. Define culture, cultural humility, and provide different interventions for building therapeutic alliance with marginalized cultures, and cultures outside clinician’s. An additional and intentional focus on opportunities for cognitive behavioral practices within the Anti-racism framework, will be discussed. The importance of understanding our own personal culture and potential implications pertaining to the ability for understanding the individual’s culture, promotes intentional identification of bias and countertransference, and removes barriers to treatment.
