President’s Message: Michelle Hairston, EdD, MT-BC

Championship in 2005

I am pleased to present the 2005 year in review, I was privileged to assume leadership as President on January 1, 2006. Indeed, it is a thrill and honor to serve an organization of champions. I observe now, more than ever, that the combined efforts of AMTA - the Board, its staff, and the entire membership represent a championship force. In 2005 we have demonstrated leadership and excellence in both service and scholarship.

The AMTA 2005 Annual Report examines our accomplishments and challenges over the past year but it also offers an opportunity to be mindful of our influence on those we touch. What we’ve accomplished in 2005, and look forward to in the future, directly affects those we serve as well as the profession. That is an awesome consideration and I am grateful we operate as a team to further our goals and advance the profession.

We can be proud of our 2005 accomplishments; and, we take pride in standing by those who literally weathered the hurricanes of 2005. Their perseverance is the essence of service championship.

Scholarship means much more than a degree. It is the method of achievement that contributes to our base of knowledge. I encourage a cohesive agenda of research that supports practice policy, reimbursement, and workforce initiatives.

As a result of conservative financial management, 2005 revealed a turn around in AMTA’s fiscal health. Every development effort contributes to our mission, no matter the size. Our many partnerships, such as the one with Robin Spielberg, are win-win partnerships fiscally and in terms of advocacy. Our focus will be to continue to strengthen our reserves for fiscal stability.

In 2004, we were reminded of our commitment to lifelong learning and excellence. Once again, in that spirit I ask, “What did you do in 2005 and what are your future goals as champions of service and scholarship?”

Reimbursement and Policy

In coordination with state and regional contacts, a reimbursement education initiative was launched to members nationwide. CMTE sessions were provided at regional meetings and national conference. Guidance for educators is under review and consideration as part of student education. American WholeHealth Networks, Inc. (AWHN), is a credential verification vendor specializing in Complementary and Alternative Medicine (CAM). AMTA’s 2004 application for provider listing of music therapists was accepted. In 2005 the program was expanded and is available nationwide. Increasing numbers of insurance companies offer affinity programs as a way to respond to customer demands and as a way to measure CAM services. Practice demand is influenced by music therapist’s participation in AWHN. Therefore participation by music therapists will be analyzed to determine future continuation of the profession as a CAM listing in affinity programs offered to health insurers.
Policy and Practice

CARF: AMTA shifted from an Associate Member of the Commission on Accreditation of Rehabilitation Facilities (CARF) to a member of its International Advisory Council. This improves the ability of AMTA to contribute to standards development.

State activity: Government Relations activity was highly active in 14 states nationwide in 2005. Of note is the fact that actions and decisions influencing reimbursement policy and practice in one state can influence and affect similar activity in other states. Therefore, state activity is of mutual interest to music therapists in individual states, within regions and at the national level.

NY Creative Arts Therapist License: Under the leadership of Donna Polen, the NY State Task Force on Occupational Regulation efforts in 2005 addressed and advocated for clarification of Board Certified Music Therapists right to practice in the state. Given the potential impact of the issue within and outside New York, the aim in 2005 was to aggressively seek a favorable legislative solution.

Oregon and evidence supported music therapy protocol: Joint national and local activity in the state of Oregon resulted in a successful application for approval of evidence based protocol in the area of music therapy and dementia care. Overall demand by public and private service agencies is increasing for evidence-based MT protocols.

Copyright: Updated guidance on the subject of music copyright law was provided. Updates addressed music downloads for digital players used in clinical settings, client and music therapist recordings, fair use standard interpretation, and limited distribution issues. All music therapists are reminded of the importance of copyright law compliance.

IDEA: 2005 marked continued regulatory activity for recognition of music therapy as a related service. The profession was well represented throughout the US Dept. of Education during public meetings by AMTA members and parents of music therapy clients.

Putting research into practice: 2005 marked successful completion of the joint AMTA/NARAS supported research project titled “Active Music Interventions and Coping Behaviors of Children with Cancer” directed by Sheri Robb, PhD, MT-BC.

Task Force: Led by Past-President Barbara Crowe, a task force report on Sound and Music Healing Organizations was issued in 2005. This is a significant effort providing information on the use and relative differences of music therapy to that of many sound and music healing specialists.

CPT Application: AMTA applied to the American Medical Association (AMA) requesting music therapy-specific procedural/service codes for use by qualified music therapists in applicable practice settings. When reviewed by the AMA’s Current Procedural Terminology (CPT®) Editorial Panel, comments validated music therapy as a profession that is able to utilize existing CPT codes for reporting procedures, without the need for additional codes.

Research: Scholarship and Evidence-based Practice

Good science and scholarship pave the way for how music therapists practice as well as their ability to practice. Throughout 2005, AMTA and its membership promoted and defended their practice via research findings. Jobs were renewed and created as a result of presenting the best evidence in support of a) particular music therapy interventions and b) with defined populations.

Likewise, some existing and potentially new music therapy jobs were unfunded because of challenges regarding the quality and level of evidence for music therapy with some populations. To meet this challenge music therapy research was made a priority of the organization. The intent is to initiate an operational plan resulting in guidance to the profession.

The efforts of investigator initiated research culminated in clinically related and research supported AMTA sponsored monographs in 2005:

Education

The Academic Program Approval Committee (APAC) operated ‘full steam ahead’ in 2005 with re-approval reviews. Procedures to make the review process more ‘user friendly’ were developed and the APAC clarified the standard used for master’s degree reviews until advanced competencies are adopted.

In accordance with the Standards for Education and Clinical Training, letters and materials were sent to all educators regarding the process for reapplying for AMTA approval.

In 2005, AMTA recorded 73 approved academic programs. Nine academic programs were reviewed in 2005. One program was discontinued in 2005 while two new graduate programs were approved at Appalachian State University and Indiana University Purdue University, Indianapolis.

There were 173 internship sites on the national roster. In 2005, Six new internships were approved, three deactivated and seven sites were on inactive status.

Loyola University temporarily closed due to the hurricanes. Loyola reopened for the Spring 2006 semester. AMTA expresses its thanks to the many academic and internship programs who accommodated Loyola students.

AMTA National Initiative for Continuing Education (N.I.C.E.)

The National Initiative for Continuing Education (NICE) provides continuing education opportunities to music therapists and other healthcare professionals beyond the Annual Conference. In 2005 NICE featured many events nationwide on music therapy topics that included songwriting, supervision, Bonny method of GIM, NICU services, and early childhood. Numberous members generously donated their fees from these programs to AMTA. Please continue to participate in NICE initiatives and events nationwide.
